Covenant - The New Covenant is called eternal in Hebrews 13:20

By Dan Maines

The New Covenant is called eternal in Hebrews 13:20, meaning it has no end and cannot be replaced or followed by another. Scripture is clear about both its beginning and its permanence:

It began with the death and resurrection of Jesus, who said, "This cup, which is poured out for you, is the new covenant in My blood" (Luke 22:20). His sacrifice inaugurated it.

It was confirmed and fully established when the Old Covenant system was judged and removed in 70 AD, just as Hebrews

8:13 said: "But whatever is becoming obsolete and growing old is about to disappear."

The New Covenant is everlasting because:

It was ratified by the blood of the eternal Son of God.

It provides eternal redemption (Hebrews 9:12).

It secures an unshakable kingdom (Hebrews 12:28).

It is not like the Old Covenant which was broken (Jeremiah 31:31-32).

So no, it cannot be followed by another. Any idea of a future covenant replacing it contradicts the plain language of Hebrews and the completed redemptive work of Christ.
